Apocalypse Now: The Lion Roars
“The Church at Prayer”
Revelation 8:1-5
Chad Montoya

The book of Revelation is a fusion of vision and prayer. When the seventh seal is opened, there is silence in heaven for about half an hour. A climax has been reached. The silence prepares the mind to receive an incredible truth. While conflicts raged between good and evil, prayers went up from devout bands of first century Christians all over the Roman empire. Massive engines of persecution and scorn were ranged against them. They had neither weapons nor votes. They had little money and no prestige. Why didn't they cut and run? They prayed. The silence of heaven indicates the import of prayer. God listens.
